Overwhelmed with erection fatigue? Pissed your candidate lost? Before you slit your wrists or leave for another country, enjoy one last Pitt hash! Running and drinking will help relieve your anxieties, drown your sorrows or offer an outlet to figure out how the fuck to survive the next president. Our politics may be in the shitter but the hash is always stronger together. After all, hashing has always been great.

Bring a headlamp. Trail is dog friendly (woof!), Pisci's is likely not.

Trail #120 Review by ManGurglar

There was a whole lot of chatter on the Facebook before this trail because it was starting outside of the city limits. It was approved by mis-management so no problem there. Apparently Cream of Mushroom didn't realize just how far away it was. He rode his bike from the west end! Pisci's Bar was in the middle of a residential neighborhood on top of the hill. We went out to do chalk talk & bless the hares and Glitr showed up! We hardly recognized him though as he was wearing tights under his green booty shorts. He was peer pressured into taking them off. OCD even showed up, but apparently, he lives very close to the start of trail. Trail took off down the hill and up another one. Wheelbarrow Wille brought a virgin, Ben.

Death Marshall was impressed with the amount of shiggy the hares could find on trail. First beer stop was in a park and there was plenty of good beer for everyone. 2nd Beer stop was in the middle of some shiggy after running through some decent trails in the woods. We ran through some new housing developments. Where aren't they building in Pittsburgh right now? Then we made it to circle in the woods, but we weren't far from some nice houses, fortunately we weren't disrupted with any cops.

There was absolutely no talk of the election the night before...Shit Trail Guys.
